

Dear Sirs:

I am writing to express my adamant objection to the proposed merger AT&T (American Telephone and Telegraph) and Deutsche Telekom AG D.B. A. T-Mobile. I was a former customer of Cingular Wireless as well as Bell South for both telephone and internet services, and when AT&T merged with Bell South, the service seriously declined and the prices went significantly higher. I am a current T-Mobile customer and I will leave my current cell phone provider if the merger goes through. I am also old enough to remember when the federal government broke up AT&T in the first place for anti-trust activities. AT&T does not need to overextend the market place again.

Thank you,

Richard A. Willoughby
